State's Attorney Hull Says They will be Tried-Another Step in Addie Burns Case-Diadato Appeal Perfected

At the opening of the criminal superior court this morning it is expected that sentence will be given in the case of the state vs. Sidney Armstrong, who was found guilty of larceny last week, the sentence being delayed until the state attorney looked up his past.

The state attorney has been busy interviewing witnesses in the cases against Hill and Babson and he stated that they are due to come up for trial this morning when court resumes. He could not say whether the trial would be public, or in chambers, as that would rest with Judge Reed. It is because of the revolting details connected with the case that there has been any idea that it would be otherwise than public. The accused have not seemed to realize their position during their stays in the court room. The charges against them are grave ones and heave a thorough hearing, and it is understood it was to be heard at this term of the court. As yet no time for it has been sej.

Among the continued cases on the docket this term is the case against Dominick Diadatto, who is in state prison' under death sentence. This case is on the continued list, as Diadato's attorneys have perfected their appeal to the supreme court, where they are to carry the case on the claim of error in the trial when he was convicted.

The case against Viney Malady will probably not be disposed of until that they are due to come up for trial this morning when court resumes. He could not say whether the trial would be public, or in chambers, as that would rest with Judge Reed. It is because of the revolting details connected with the case that there has been any idea that it would be otherwise than public. The accused have not seemed to realize their position during their stays in the court room. The charges against them are grave ones and heavy penalties go with them. One party connected with the case, it is understood, has turned state's evidence. There are two charges against the young men either one of which is bad enough alone.

Stearns, chairman of the board of ad-justment of the New York, New Hajustment of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

There were about twenty-five present at the institution, including employes of the New Haven road in New London, Norwich, Mystic, Westerly, and the surrounding towns. The following board of officers was elected:
President, C. J. Wilkinson of Norwich; vice president, Albert L. Hewitt of
New London; secretary and treasurer,
Clarence Adams of New London; ser-

Clarence Adams of New London; ser-geant at arms A. I. Moriarty of New London; chaplain, H. Ellson; inner guard David I. McDowell of New London: outer guard, George L, King of New London:
The lodge was instituted in New London in order that clerks in the employ of the New Haven road in this vicinity might belong to a lodge which was easy of access. Formerly nearly all the clerks employed in the estition
